HEALTH NOTICE.

To the Citizens of Bangor.

The State has provided that certain measures shall be pursued in order to insure the health of the inhabitants. Among those measures are the removing of filth, unclean and noisome substances, and all things injurious to health, from the premises of citizens. Permit me to suggest to you,

1st—To examine your cellars particularly, their condition in regard to ventilation, dampness, decaying vegetables and all other filthy substances.

2d—See if there is any offensive smell from your sinks, or if your drains are clogged or uncovered.

3d—Examine your privies and vaults. If they are full, running over, or filthy, or smell badly, have them emptied.

4th—See if there are decaying substances or filth of any kind about your premises.

5th—See if there is any public nuisance in your neighborhood, such as open sewers, drains, cesspools, stagnant water, offensive stables, hogpitts &c.

6th—See if any drain, cesspool, privy, stable, or hog sty, is so near to your well as to soak or drain into it. By observing and carrying out the above suggestions you will confer a favor on the public, and a blessing on yourself.

New Bounty.

Circular to Soldiers & their Heirs.

April 14th, 1870. President Grant has, by Proclamation, called for 75,000 Volunteer Soldiers to suppress Rebellion

He promised soldier's legal pay to each man, and also $100 Bounty to every man who should enlist under his Proclamation, to be paid by the United States when honorably discharged.

This $100 Bounty law, to this time, hasn't passed to all soldiers who enlisted under that call, in case they were discharged for sickness, or on surgeon's certificate of disability, who were in the army less than two years, though clearly entitled by the words and spirit of the President's Proclamation

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that this promised Bounty must now be paid, and I am prepared to obtain it for every soldier who enlisted before July 22d, 1861, who received an honorable discharge for disability, sickness, or on surgeon's certificate of disability.

Soldiers can call at my office personally—send by mail or other means.

It is very desirable to have the soldier's discharges in all cases, so the Bounty can be more readily collected, but the Bounty can be obtained where the discharge is lost, or cannot be had

☞ Also, it is decided that soldiers with the promise of $300 Bounty, to be paid by installments, and to have not been fully paid the full amount, though discharged by expiration of service, or because their services were no longer required, are now entitled to the remaining installment promised

☞ A bill has passed one branch of Congress, giving the $160 to the widows, children or parents of all fathers who died in the army, where the soldier enlisted for one year or less.

☞ We will give $100 to the heirs of all soldiers who died in the service, belonging to any nine months or three months regiments, or even less.

I shall give particular attention to these classes of cases, and I have full records in the case of every Maine soldier.

☞ There are several other classes of cases where Bounty, Pension Prize Money, Mileage, or Rations are due, especially are there many meritorious claims for Pension due dependant mothers or fathers of soldiers who lost their lives in the army.

In many such cases applications have been made, but remain unsettled for want of proof, or from neglect, and frequently incompetency of the agent who filed the claim. This class of cases I will attend to. Also I will continue to obtain Pensions for all wounded and disabled soldiers, or, in case of death of the soldier, for their widows or children.

☞ A bill is going before Congress giving $175 to to each soldier who has lost a leg or arm in the army. It is believed this Bill will pass.

All advice free relating to these claims. Pensions paid to Pensioners without extra charge.

FEEDING AND RAISING CALVES. Many people, particularly in town, so manage that their cows calve early in the spring before the grass grows. It is frequently found that a liberal feeding of hay and bran mashes scarcely supplies milk-producing food in order that enough may be obtained to rear the calf and to give a supply besides for the use of the family. I have found that the most nourishing food to fat calf, when milk in large enough quantities cannot be had, or in cold weather when the mute stranger requires plenty of food to keep up animal heat, linseed meal, which proves an excellent substitute, and is in fact more fattening than the cow's milk itself.

My plan of feeding is this; take the calf away from its dam so soon as it is born; if possible, do not let it suck: feed it with milk from a common quart bottle at first; after a day or two it will learn to suck the finger and drink out of the pail. If there is not sufficient milk, boil a tea cup full of linseed meal for half an hour in a quart, and stir it up with the milk. After the first two weeks the calf may be fed with half skim milk and the above quantity of boiled linseed, filling up the required quantity with water. Care should be taken to have the calf's mess as near as possible the same warmth that milk is when drawn from the cow. I have found that a calf will thrive and grow fat on this mixture.

Some people feed out of corn meal, but there is danger of these 'scouring,' and thus losing the calf. Twenty five cents' worth of linseed, or two and a half pounds per week, will be found quite sufficient, and this food will be found perfectly harmless. Calves should be kept in a warm, dry shed, with plenty of clean straw bedding, and properly and regularly fed. They can, with care and attention, be reared at any season of the year. I look upon it as a sin to kill better calves. Spare the innocents!

Scripture pictures, as they are presented to children's books and papers, are often an offence to good taste as well as to truthfulness. Those who make these pictures (as a writer in the Advance suggests,) have a good deal to answer for. 'Beings with birds' wings awkwardly stuck to their shoulder blades, and called angels; Jacob's ladder, a thing of sticks and rungs, instead of the eastern 'ladder,' a series of precipices and steep ascent of rocks and verdure, on which angels could ascend and descend without knocking each other off; all good people represented as white and fair, instead of bold cottage black, which is a remarkable beauty, African and Sea Islander.' All such things are poor educators, to say the least. Even the Vienna famous picture of the Last Judgment makes the children of every where convey a falsehood in representing the Companionship sealed up right at the throne.

EMPLOYING OF TEACHERS.

Under this head, Hon. Warren Johnson, State Superintendent of Common Schools, writes a letter to the Kennebec Journal in which he briefly gives the reasons for the legislation which transferred the power to employ teachers from District Agents to Superintending School Committees. The letter is as follows:—

"1. It was desirable that the same party should examine, qualify and employ teachers, as an ordinary business transaction.

"2. The examination of applicants should precede the employing of the same. Under the double-headed system of Agents and Supt. School Committee, the reverse of this generally occurred. We do not purchase a horse and then test his qualities, but first test and then conclude the bargain.

"3. Of the two bodies—agents and committees—it was concluded that the latter were on the whole better qualified to discharge the entire duty of examining and employing.

"4. It was desirable to fix upon some person or persons the responsibility of a good or poor teacher, and consequently of a good or a poor school. Heretofore that responsibility has been divided between the agent, who employed, and the committee who issued the certificate; each throwing the blame of a poor teacher or a poor school upon the other. True the entire responsibility of examination devolved upon the committee, and a strictly faithful discharge of duty would demand the refusal of certificate to an incompetent person. The pressing demand of the agent however, joined with the request of the applicant, and numerous other considerations, often influenced to grant certificates to individuals disqualified for the position of teacher. No such excuse can now be brought by the committee for any dereliction of duty.

"5. The entire authority and responsibility thus thrown upon the committee will induce to stricter examinations, elevate and fix the standard of qualification, oblige the teacher to better preparation for his duties, giving us better work in the school-room, and consequently more satisfactory returns for the school money invested. Five years of straightforward effort in this direction will add twenty-five per cent. to the quality of the teaching force.

"6. The employing power thus placed in the hands of the committees will induce to better inspection of the school, and to a closer scrutiny of teacher's work.

"7. More and will now be exercised in the selection of men qualified to discharge the increased responsibility of the office of Supt. School Committee.

"8. The experience of other States and of those towns of our State more active and advanced in educational agencies, confirms the wisdom of this transfer. Nearly all the States having a common school system, examine, certificate and employ teachers through the same officials.

"The inciting assertions of a certain class that this is an 'invasion of rights,' 'centralization of power,' 'anti-republican,' 'anti-democratic,' &c., ought to have no weight with a deliberate mind. If one set of officials can do better work for the community than two, let us have the one. Nature never employs two forces to accomplish what can be done by one—the same law should hold true in political and school economy.

"It was not the intention of the friends of this measure either to 'abridge rights' or 'centralize' power, but to delegate powers inherent in the community to a class of officers through whom the interest of the common schools might be best promoted. It is earnestly hoped that agents will be interested to present their best candidates for examination as teachers to the committees, and that the several towns will take especial interest in selecting the most earnest and efficient educators committees and supervisors. We must all work together generously and zealously in perfecting the daily public schools."

CRUELTY AND SUFFERING. The fact of the arrival at Boston of the ship Lydia Skolfield, of Brunswick, Me., has been already stated, as well as the fact that she had a voyage of 162 days from Calcutta and experienced hard weather, and according to the report of the master, Captain S. Skolfield, had a hard time generally. In the United States Commissioner's Court Tuesday, one of the crew, named Mitchell, was held for trial in the Circuit Court for an assault on the mate with a knife. The examination of the case brought out evidence enough to demand of the Commissioner, who always looks carefully after the rights of men before the mast, that complaints be made against the captain of the ship for cruelty and unusual punishment, and against the mate, Selwin Morse, for assaulting Mitchell with a piece of wire rope. Both were before the Commissioner Thursday, and were held for trial in the Circuit Court, May 15, upon these charges. It appeared that after the assault with the knife by Mitchell was entirely over, the mate deliberately got the piece of wire rope, equal almost to a bar of iron of similar size, and struck Mitchell a blow over the head, cutting open his scalp, and causing a profuse flow of blood. Directly afterward, the Captain with a drawn revolver in his hands ordered Mitchell forward, where he reluctantly went. He was put in irons in a part of the vessel called the lazaretto, which in this case was about four or five feet high and ventilated only by the scuttle at the top and lighted by dead lights. In this he was kept in irons on bread and water for thirty-five days, without being allowed to come out for a minute, not even for the purposes of nature." The air of the place of confinement can be easily imagined. Many of the crew of the ship became sick, and at one time only eight were fit for duty. One man died of scurvy. To show that Mitchell was not a dangerous man, when the working force of the ship was so reduced, he was taken out of his hole and put to work, and was on duty until within a day of the ship's arrival in this port, when he was again put in irons. Others of the crew had the scurvey, and Mitchell and one or two others who were in Court Thursday looked thin and out of health.—When it is remembered that the vessel was only between thirty and forty days overdue, and that vessels are constantly arriving as much overdue without any sickness; that scurvey does not arise from bad weather, hard work or exposure; but from want of proper food; that the officers of the ship, the captain and the mates, have a moderately healthy appearance, it seems as if a screw was loose somewhere, and all friends of "poor Jack" will thank the U. S. Commissioner for demanding an investigation of the case.

TOO POLITE. Not long ago a newly married couple from the country established themselves as a fashionable hotel in one of our Western cities, for the purpose of 'seeing the sights.' The lady was young and pretty, the husband honest and verdant. The pair had been in the hotel some twenty-four hours, when the bridegroom walked up to the clerk and remarked: 'That's my wife that stops in the room with me.'

'Yes, I suppose so,' was the bland reply of the clerk.

'Well, I thought I'd mention it,' continued the man, 'so you wouldn't think it strange in my complaining. I never like to find fault, you know; but we're kind of bothered. We've only been here since yesterday, and my wife has been invited to go to ride three times, and to go to the minstrels' shows likewise; and just now a sleek-looking chap knocked at the door and wanted to know if she was alone, and another actually inquired if that 'countryman she had on the string had gone? I've no doubt these young men mean well enough, but they are too degoned polite for me.'

The poor fellow was assured that the 'well-meaning' young men should not not annoy him any further with their politeness, and he retired apparently much gratified.

Since the time of St. Peter there have been 257 Popes, including one female Pontiff. Of these, 31 were declared usurpers and banished from Rome, and of the 226 legitimate wearers of the triple crown, 64 experienced violent deaths. Out of the whole number, 153, or more than half, showed themselves unfit for their office, six, in spite of their vows, had children. The successor of Leo IV., it is said, was a woman, and died in child-birth; per-peril papissa papillam, said contemporaries. Urban V. confessed his fallibility, and submitted to the censures of a Council, and two others confessed that they had sinned. On the whole, the history of Christ's vicars shows frequent and lamentable absences of the influence of the Holy Spirit in their conduct, and furnishes a rather strong argument for the Protestant against his scheme for the declaration of infallibility.

INTERESTING DOCUMENTS. The following letters were read in the course of the McFarland trial, the first from Mrs. Samuel Sinclair, and the second from Mrs. Calhoun.

The following is Mrs. Calhoun's letter:

Friday Morning, Feb. 22.

My Darling Child,—What can I say to comfort thee? My heart bleeds over thee.—Would that I could enfold thee forever more. My darling, if it were not for Percey, I should take thee away and keep thee as soon as I go home. I do not suppose Mr. C. would let me take him. My precious one, you must make your decision. It is profanation for you to stay with that man; you shall not! No woman ought to put her womanhood to open shame as you have been forced to do for years. It is most cruel,—most devilish, You cannot work, you cannot advance, you can make certain of no fortune for yourself and children while you stay. There is no justice, no reason, no hope in your doing it. My darling, you will leave him scathless; the world is more generous than you think about these things. Every thoughtful man or woman will justify you, and you can shake off the shackles and work with free hands. It is dreadful to have you fight against such odds. I think you could live yourself and Percey—for what you can now, and if you can only be free, so that you can improve your salary will be increased. It is wonderful that you have been able to do anything with your disabilities, and I do think that now you may do so much. Oh! do leave him, my darling! it is so wrong that you should stay with him.

FRIDAY EVENING.

My Darling—We have just received Mr. R.'s letter. I am so glad you left M. Do not, I beseech you, return. Do not let any weakness of mercy possess you. It is happy that the stroke has fallen, no matter what heartbreaks come with it. I would be glad that you suffer, if your suffering would keep you away from him. My darling,—for whom I would die,—do not so wrong your womanhood as to go back. You must not—shall not. When I come back you shall come straight to me and stay; I will have it so. I will come to-morrow, if you insist upon me. Write me my darling, all things. Even if you are distracted, write; it will calm you and help you. All my heart flows to you. I would help you, guard you, heal you, if I could. My darling, you cannot be misunderstood. I, a proud woman, tell you that only by leaving him can you justify yourself to yourself and to the world of noble people. My darling, my money and house and grief are yours forever. You will not hesitate to come to me, for you love me. This is a poor note. I have had to scrawl it in pencil what I have not time to say in ink. To-morrow, when (if you are better, I shall write you a better letter. All my heart is yours. Let Mr. Richardson help you. He is good and strong. Stay where you are till I come, then come to me my darling. I love you and sorrow for you.

FEMALE JURORS.—The question as to the capabilities of women to serve as jurors having been raised by the people and press throughout Wyoming Territory, where several females composed a portion of the panel at one term of the Court recently, Judge Howe, of the Supreme Court of that Territory has written out for publication his observations. He frankly admits that, notwithstanding the strong prejudices he at first entertained against the policy, the women acquitted themselves with such dignity, decorum, propriety of conduct, and intelligence as to win the admiration of every fair-minded citizen of Wyoming. They were careful, painstaking, intelligent, and conscientious. They were firm and resolute for the right as established by the law and the testimony. Their verdicts were right, and, after the grand jury had been in session two days, the dance-house keepers, gamblers, and demi-monde fled out of the city to escape the indictment of women grand jurors! In short, he says he has never, in 25 years of constant experience in the courts of the country, seen a more faithful, intelligent, and resolutely honest grand

"DECORATION DAY"

Already the comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic are preparing for the most beautiful and impressive of their self-assumed duties—the decoration of the graves of their dead companions. This duty is one which no other hands can so appropriately perform, and as they enter upon its discharge, the toils, the depravations, the tedious marches, the excitement of the battle-field, the long nights in the trenches and the short rations in the haversacks are recalled to memory, and the forms of their lost friends are once more presented to their minds. Then they fight their battles again in memory, and thus the patriotic feelings that inspired and sustained them during the weary years of the war are again kindled in their hearts, the past enthusiasm again lights up their features, and makes the warm blood thrill anew with devotion to our country and to liberty, even though a lost limb or impaired health may be a stern reminder that their soldier days can never return, even though their country may again call upon its strong and sturdy sons to rally around its banner.

We learn that the arrangements for the observance of Decoration Day, in this State, will be on a still larger scale than last year. The lapse of time only increases the interest of the "comrades" in this observance, and up to this time there has been a steady increase in the membership of the organization.

No day has yet been appointed for the observance of this custom. For two years the last day of May has been set apart, and universally observed, but for New England and some others of the more Northern States this is too early in the season, and in consequence of the scarcity of flowers the expenses are much greater than they would need to be two weeks later, when the supply of flowers for decorating would be much larger. We hope this matter will be taken into consideration at the meeting of the National Encampment, to be held in Washington on the 13th of May, and if it is not thought advisable to have a later day selected for the whole country, that each State Encampment be instructed to fix for itself the most suitable time for this observance.

A long letter from John B. Sanborn, late Indian Commissioner, attributes the trouble with the Indians to lack of faith on the part of the government in carrying out the provisions of the treaties. He says the question for the government officials now to determine is whether it is better to fulfill our treaty stipulations with these people, give them ten dollars worth of supplies each, and and opportunity to dispose at fair rates of the products of the chase, or enter into a war that renders insecure our whole frontier, jeopardises all our vast railroad interests on the plains, destroys much life and property, and which will demand the expenditure of $50-000,000 at least from the Treasury. He hopes that every effort will be made to preserve peace with the Indians. Those upon the reservations, half civilized and stupefied by sloth and surfeiting, may be slighted and neglected with impunity, but the wild, hunting, warlike Indians resent insult and rush to war whenever satisfied that they have been dealt with treacherously or oppressed without cause. From the best information Mr. Sanborn has there are at least 12 000 of the wild roving Indians of the Dakota tribes, a larger number have ceased to roam and are upon reservations, and if peace can be maintained all can be brought upon reservations in a few years without expense and without loss of life. The country where they now hunt is not needed by our people and will not be for some time to come and by the time it is needed, the Indians will have abandoned it, for the game will have disappeared.

The Freedmen's Bureau investigating committee made some inquiry Saturday as to how the points of the evidence get into the newspapers, and found that the witnesses had also been examined by the reporters which fact was evidently a revelation to the committee. The cross-examination of the contractors for the university was continued by General Howard's counsel. One of them said four thousand dollars would about cover the cost of putting in the iron columns to ease the weight of the floor and roof off the walls, after they were found to be unsound. He also said that the house and church upon which the bureau funds had been loaned were ample for their security. The witness was asked if he had anything to do with getting up the charges under investigation, and replied that he had not. The other witness said that he knew nothing about the quality of the patent brick, but got up his plans with the understanding that it was to be used. The original purchasers of the right to use it were General Howard, Colonel Whittelsey, Superintendent Alvord and two or three others about the bureau, but subsequently Gen. Howard got out of the company. The session was a long one, but the evidence was not as a whole, very important.

The English papers are reluctantly coming to acknowledge that the Suez Canal may be of some commercial value after all. An instance is mentioned by the London Times to show how great a saving of time may be made by the passage through it. The steamship Danube, with a cargo of four thousand bales of cotton, sailed from Bombay on the 12th of February. A part of this cargo was received at a Huddersfield mill on the 25th of March, and samples of yarn manufactured from the cotton were sent back to Bombay by the Danube, which sailed from Liverpool on the 20th of March, the forty-fifth day after she left Bombay. The usual time by the Cape route by vessels of the class of the Danube is one hundred to one hundred and twenty days, reckoning only the actual sailing time.

The bounty bill passed by the House in February is not likely to be acted upon in the Senate. It was intended to reach the soldiers who enlisted under the call of July 1 1861, and were discharged for disability by reason of sickness before the expiration of their two years' service. The late decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Major Hosmer, 15th Massachusetts Volunteers, settled the point at issue and renders the bill unnecessary. The Treasury Department is receiving applications for this bounty and a good deal of money will be taken out before the whole thing is settled.

The Canadian papers have a theory, which is not so very bad that the current rumors of a Fenian raid are started by the hired enemies of the Dominion, in order to divert attention from the Red River. They assert that the Fenians themselves are co-operating with the Red River insurgents, and hope by threats of another raid to prevent the departure of troops to the support of Governor McDougall. If this be true, the device seems to have succeeded, for it is stated that the warriors of the Dominion are to be sent to the New York and Vermont border. Meanwhile the Fenian movements continue though, their objective point is as uncertain as ever.

A dispatch just received from Montevideo states that an attack from the exiled Blanco faction was threatened. Extensive preparations for defence are being made.

The Danish Minister of War, who under Mr. Seward's manipulation brought his government up to the required pitch in the St. Thomas negotiations, finding that the United States has allowed the treaty to expire without further action has sent in his resignation. Here is a fine chance for Mr. Seward to display his charitable feelings in giving the official whom he has brought to grief substantial aid.

In the Supreme Court on Monday, the argument was resumed from Thursday in the case of the Merchants National Bank of Boston, plaintiff in error, vs. State National Bank, which will probably continue until Tuesday night. The legal tender question is therefore deferred until that case shall be finished.

The number of unemployed men in San Francisco is large. Over 2,000 assemble in answer to an advertisement that work would be given them on Yerba buena Park, but only a part could be employed and tickets were issued entitling one set to work an allotted amount of time, when another set should take their places. After all however the cartmen refused to go to work at the advertised rates of $3 50 per day and demand $4 00.

When the jury in the Perry murder case in New York, rendered their verdict of guilty the prisoner, weeping, sprang toward his wife and five little children and embraced them. The poor woman cried out in pathetic tones "Oh, my children! my children! what will become of you?" and then in her grief fell to the floor in a swoon.

An American recently from Mexico says that it is charged against Juarez in Mexico by his enemies and friends alike that a secret treaty has been made between the United States and Juarez for the sale of Sonora, Durango, Chihuahua and Cinaloa to the U. S. and that the treaty was concluded while Sumner was in the city of Mexico last winter. It is when Juarez presented the treaty for execution or approval to the Mexican Congress that body refused to sign the same which brought the late revolution to a head, which has been put down by Juarez, who has thus concluded the treaty by a successful war.

In something less than a month a considerable expedition will start from the Dominion of Canada to suppress the existing disturbances in the Red River country. It is known the same to that Dominion is acting to the tenor of the English and Colonial treaties and stipulations in that behalf. While English deprays the cost of this expedition, the Irish of the troops are to be drawn from the Dominion, the regular British army furnishing only the artillerymen and perhaps a few of the infantry as a sort of nucleus for the provincials. The route lies by water to the Sault St. Mary, by march around that, and so to Fort William, whence the journey to Red River headquarters will be made in about two days. As it is hardly likely that potentate will make any serious resistance, if indeed he attempt anything further than flight, the Red River war will find its close about the first of June. It seems probable from the temper of the Dominion that Riel if caught, may be roughly dealt with for the death of the Orangeman Scott, but then the territories of Manitoba are conveniently open to him, and will be a safe harborage barring an extradition demand.

A WORD ON COMMON SCHOOLS

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

To the school officers of this county and all persons who have an interest in educational matters, I wish to say a few words. We are on the threshold of another school year. The education machinery, whose operation has been suspended for a season will soon be set in motion again.

During the winter repairs have been made which will somewhat change and it is hoped improve its action. I refer to the fact that the power and duty to employ teachers by the district agents to town committees. Educators signally agree that this change is in the right direction, and it was made by the last Legislature with the utmost deliberation. But all changes in the right direction do not bear immediate fruit, so it must be with this and so it will be, unless all who are interested in the schools give to the law their judgment, discretion and forbearance. All officers from lowest to highest, whose duties relate to the same subject matters are inclined to be jealous, and sensitive of infringements. Many are naturally more prone to arrogate their full yield power. This is true where the division of duty and responsibility has been made clear by years of action. There has sometimes been a little friction between committees in the discharge of their respective duties, and now that one of their chief prerogatives has been taken from them and given to the other, there is danger of more. The reasons for a measure will prevent this misapprehension if they do not come to the operation of those whom it was all for. Why was this transfer of power made? It is an absurd business proceeding to hire a man to do skilled labor, and stipulate the mill to be paid, before you have in any way tested his ability to do it. Teachers should be hired by the men who examine them and examined before they are hired. Committees examine them and know better what skill they are likely to show in their vocation and what price should be paid for it after such examination, than agents who do not examine them at all themselves, and hire them and fix the price before anybody else has done it. A teacher may be prepared to do good service in one school in a town and is well fitted for all in another. If committees employ he will naturally be assigned to the former agents, he is as liable to be hired for the latter. A teacher who is well adapted to a school should be retained for a series of terms, or as long as he does good work. If committees employ where will be every reason for retaining good teachers and have a motive to faithfulness on their part. When agents hire, everybody knows there are reasons which bring about frequent changes with their injurious consequences. Division of responsibility weaken the interest, and impairs the faithfulness of officers. If committees hire as well as examine and certificate teachers, they will have full responsibility for their action, and be more careful in selecting and more cordial in supporting them. These are a few of the many reasons which secured the measure, and I believe if they could all be appreciated, it would be cheerfully acquiesced in by all, and even half as a full step out on the road of school progress. There should be no friction between those who have the same interests, and whose views should be common. Agents should feel that the duties of furnishing and supplying comfortable and proper places for the employment of the God given minds of the young is just as responsible and honorable as the employing of suitable persons to direct and stimulate such unfoldment—that the new law only makes a more proper and judicious division of labor and committees should feel that they are to use their new authority in the best possible service of the several districts, and never for the sake of the use.

If both classes of officers throughout the County will work faithfully, and with a spirit of forbearance in their respective spheres, and parents will appreciate their efforts and let their own moral influence go out towards judicious ends, the Summer term of our schools will begin under harmonious conditions, and with good prophecies, and then the fulfillment of the prophecies will rest mainly with the teachers.

S. A. PLUMMER,
County Superintendent.

FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT

LONDON, March 22d, 1870.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

Boston and New York have both during the present winter, agitated the subject of an Art Museum and prepared lecturers have urged the need of Art culture in America and deplored the utter barrenness of the means for Aesthetic Education. The low condition of the Drama in the United States has also received its share of attention in the public prints, &c. Here in England I find the ground is becoming very strong for some movements in pursuit of Art studies by the young men. Last Saturday night Mr. Westmacott delivered before the Royal Institution a lecture upon the needs of the hours—condemning the present Drama, and urging the establishment of schools other than those devoted entirely to the useful arts. The lecturer considered the art collection at South Kensington to be the finest in the world and unrivaled for the want of interest and the lack of taste found in the visitors. The encouragement of painting and sculpture by the awarding of prizes by the government of Mr. Layard and Sir Geo. Digby Wyatt, professors of Art at Oxford and Cambridge.

Hopetoun, who ran strong the Limes Leader and upon the Crystal Palace Committee, finds himself engaged patronizing Dorcas Society, but he still finds time and refreshment to attend a Barnardo Children Meeting. But the worst feature that the Times finds in the English character is the apparent indifference with which the people regard the sufferings of their fellow creatures. Last Sunday night, while the Rev. Mr. Williams was preaching in the Tabernacle, Finsbury, on the subject of the Destitute Children of London, a paper was handed to him stating that a woman and five little children had been found starving in a cellar in Whitechapel. The preacher announced the fact to the congregation, and this is the result. The collection amounted to £1 1s. 6d. Mr. Williams then said that he would not ask for more money, but would request that those who could afford it would give a night's lodging to the woman and children. Only one person responded to the appeal. The speaker—the London correspondent of the Times—then left the building, with the remark that he could not help thinking that the people were not in earnest in the matter.

The Infirmities of Age

Decrepitude is the natural accompaniment of old age, but may be lessened in the case of the feeble by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which gives tone and strength to the digestive organs, thereby enabling them to extract from food the nutriment which is required to sustain the vital forces. Debility, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney complaints, nervousness, and other infirmities peculiar to old age, are relieved by this genial invigorant, which also counteracts a tendency to fever, ague, and bilious remittents, prevalent in districts of country where it is used. For sale by druggists and dealers generally.

FORTY FIRST CONGRESS--SECOND SESSION

WASHINGTON, April 18.

SENATE.

A memorial from the colored people was presented, asking Congress to leave to them such portions of the Arlington farm as are not included in the National Cemetery. Referred to the Military Committee.

Several bills were presented and referred

Mr Drake introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution that the President of the United States shall have power to protect any State against domestic violence on sufficient proof being presented to them of the existence of such violence and that Congress shall have power to enforce this amendment by appropriate legislation After debate it was referred to the Judiciary Committee

Mr. Cragin from the Com. on Naval Affairs reported favorably on the bill for the relief of the officers, sailors and marines of the United States war ship Oneida.

Mr Sumner offered a resolution instructing the Com on the District of Columbia to report what legislation was necessary to secure equal rights without regard to color or race on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad

Mr Sumner read a letter from a colored member of the Georgia Legislature, to the effect that having a first class ticket for Atlanta purchased at the regular office in New York, he had been denied admission to the gentleman's car of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad and had been compelled to ride on the platform.

Mr Sumner said that this was a clear case of outrage and should be investigated. The resolution was then adopted

The Judiciary Committee reported adversely on the bill increasing the number of Supreme and Circuit Court Judges,

After some further unimportant business the consideration of the Georgia bill was resumed.

Mr Drake made a long argument in favor of his amendment authorizing the President to send United States troops into rebellious and disturbed districts of the South.

A lengthy debate was had between Messrs Sumner and Carpenter on the question of constitutional power, after which the Senate held an executive session and took a recess

At the opening of the evening session five Senators were present. After waiting 15 minutes six more came in and the Senate adjourned

HOUSE

A large number of bills were introduced and referred, including one proposing an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting donations to sectarian schools also one to enforce the 15th Amendment.

Mr Paine's (of Wisconsin,) bill for the apportionment of members of Congress was passed, 86 to 83. It provides that after March 3d, 1873 the House of Representatives be composed of 275 members, apportioned among the States now in the Union—the basis of representation to be ascertained by the Secretary of the Interior from the preliminary census report. No State is to lose any members in the 43d Congress and if the new apportionment increases the number of Representatives from any State, those for the 42d Congress shall be chosen by the State at large.

The memorial from survivors of the 25th Pennsylvania Regiment, and a resolution directing the presentation of a suitable medal to each member of the Battallion first to arrive at Washington April 19, 1861, was referred to the military committee

In committee on the whole, the paragraphs of the Tariff bill taxing flax, hemp and other vegetable yarns 40 per cent. ad valorem, and buttons, dress ornaments and articles of gutta percha or india rubber, passed without amendment

The discussion on Mr Griswold's amendment to the pig iron paragraph, reducing the duty from seven to three dollars per ton, occupied the session till the recess, and was participated in by Messrs Kelley of Pa., Allison of Iowa, Logan of Ill, Butler of Mass. and others

Mr Allison also offered an amendment that the duty on all kinds of manufactured iron be reduced 25 per cent, provided that in no case it be less than 30 per cent. ad valorem

EVENING SESSION

The entire evening session was occupied in a debate between the Pennsylvania and Western members on pig iron, and finally the House adopted --66 to 44--Mr Butler's amendment to reduce the duty five dollars per ton, and adjourned

After he snow, before the thunder
Thou March so more with stormy hours
Keeps sea fowl from the sea asunder,
Al l eace grows thin twixt foam and flowers
And rainbows come, and winds are less,
And clouds are ebony now, now pearl,
Then dead may seem my bitterness,
Drown d—even the woods their flags unfurl—
In music of the merle

Dead and a new blue violet wreath
Is found each morning on its grave
Drown d, but it dies a harder death
With each fresh Spring s returning wave
Dead but ah! youth being parted, now
Joy is as grief—or as pain,
Drown d, but its drowning arms, I trow,
Have clasped me, nor shall loose again
Till sunset thwarts the main.

Till sunset thwarts the sea, where striving
Of swimmers is, and wreck of ships
Till the great river comes, whose giving
Is sweet, and very pale his lips
Ah! Youth of mine that I have spent!
Can Life thy glorious flush that knew,
Survive thee?—yea, the firmament
Still hangs, not is one whit less blue
O er Hellas and Peru

O hours of dreaming o er a tress'
O days of glamour not of gold!
O unreturning carelessness!—
And yet—tho sweet times are the old—
Here they so sweet, those days of old?
Alas!—if all the West o th' wind
Of Youth o bel Memory—Age will whirl
A bitter blast on me who find
Now scarce more solace than the churl
In music of the merle

A FUNNY MISTAKE—STRANGE PROGRAMME OF RELIGIOUS SERVICES—The Chicago Tribune gives an amusing account of the adventures of an amiable old gentleman from the rural districts, who had been wavering between orthodoxy and heterodoxy for some time He came into the city to hear Robert Collyer preach. It was his first visit to Chicago stepping into a North Clark street horse car, he rode out as far as Turner Hall, where many of the passengers alighted, and he perce ved a crowd of people, and inquired of the conductor if that was Robert Collyer's church The conductor, amused at the simplicity of the question, promptly answered in the affirmative, and our curious inquirer passed into the hall He saw a vast crowd of men and women sitting at small tables drinking beer This rather staggered him a moment, but he reflected that they were possibly receiving the communion So he sat down at a table and looked around him Presently a young man with a white apron on came up and asked if he had ordered No, he replied, he was not exactly a member of the society but he came to hear Mr Collyer The youth with the white apron stared and passed on

Very soon a number of gentlemen stepped on the platform, with some trombones and fiddles and cornets, and began to play These Unitarians have a queer way of worshipping, thought the old gentleman but I have been living out of the world, tout is what's the matter I suppose He thought it would come out all right when Collyer came on But after the music there was 'communion,' and after a long interval there was music, and by and by a man dressed in tights came forward and commenced to swing round and round a pole Then another man dressed like the first, went through a course of exercise on the cross bar And then there was more music, and no end of "communion The stranger sat out the services very patiently, and then went home He came to the conclusion that Unitarianism was all very well in theory, but these new-fangled notions of worship were not so edifying after all as the good old Presbyterian psalms and prayers

SHOES AND SLIPPERS The regulation boot for street wear is the three quarter Polish of French kid, with fancy stitching jet buttons and slightly-curved heels an inch and a quarter high. Very narrow high French heels are also worn, but usually by ultra people and against the advice of shoe merchants Bronze boots are to be worn with ecru and brown suits, and with light summer muslins. From $12 to $15 are asked for kid or bronze boots Colored kid and satin boots are made to match reception dresses

Marie Antoinette Slippers with slender bows covering the instep, the sole and heel in one piece, are chosen with thin soles for garden and country wear A good slipper of this kind costs from $4 to $6, very fancy ones are $10 The least clumsy overshoe for spring and summer wear is the pocket rubber, a sandal covering for that part of the sole that touches the ground, held on by a strap over the heel, leaving the high heel of the shoe free, as it does not need protection, price $1 [Harper's Bazar

PRIVILEGES OF STOCKHOLDERS Two gentlemen were chatting on the Boulevard, one was a great speculator, developing the plan of a magnificent project, the other a dazzled capitalist, ready to snap at the bait. He hesitated a little, but was just yielding, merely making a few objections for conscience' sake Near these two passed a couple of youngsters of twelve years They were looking into a tobacco shop close by, and one cried out to the other

"By the piper! I'd like to smoke a sou's worth of tobacco"

'Well said the other, "buy a sou's worth."

'Ah! as luck will have it, I haven't the sou

'Hold on! I've got two sous"

"That's the ticket! just the thing, one for the pipe and one for the tobacco"

'Oh, yes, but what am I to do?'

"Yon? Oh! you shall be stockholder you spit.'

It was a flash of light The capitalist thrust his hands into his pockets and fled The speculator cast a furious look at the urchins, and turned down the street [Paris Letter

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION It is no unusual thing for stable-men to leave mixtures of lampblack and oil standing about their stables after using. In a recent conversation with one of our members, a leading dealer in paints and oils, our attention was called to the fact that partial mixtures of lampblack and oil would in a short time take fire by spontaneous combustion, and that this applied to all mixtures of caleine paints Does not this fact account for the frequency of fires in stables, where the origin is attributed to other causes [Our Dumb Animals

SOLDIERS' BOUNTIES A circular issued by the Second Auditor states that the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States relative to Bounties applies only to men who enlisted for three years, between May 4 1861 and July 22, 1861, and were honorably discharged Discharge for promotion does not entitle the soldier promoted to this bounty In case of death, after discharge the heirs of the soldier are not entitled to the bounty Soldiers entitled to this bounty will not be entitled to bounty under the act of July 28, 1866 The bounty there promised is upon certain conditions named in the act and this decision does not change those conditions

NOVEL CHURCH CEREMONY In Rome on Holy Thursday the Pope washes the feet of thirteen persons, in commemoration of the Savior washing the feet of his disciples This unique ceremony—a novelty on this side of the Atlantic—was performed last Thursday in a solitary church in New York, the Church of St Anthony, belonging to the Franciscans, in Sullivan street, near Prince street. Immediately after High Mass, the pastor, the Rev J Guerrini, disrobed himself of his principal vestments, and girt on a linen apron. Twelve persons took their seats on a platform, and each bared his right foot of boot and stocking The pastor then took a basin of water and a towel, humbly knelt and washed the several feet, and after wiping, kissed them

An amusing story is told of an ancient Mohawk notion that some great misfortune would happen if any one spoke on Saratoga Lake. A strong minded Englishwoman, on one occasion, whilst being ferried over, insisted upon talking, and as soon as she got over in safety, rallied her boatman on his superstition. But I think he had the best of it after all for he at once replied, "The Great Spirit is merciful, and knows that a white woman cannot hold her tongue"

There once resided in the good town of Peterborough in the Granite State, a man who obtained a livelihood by sawing wood and drinking cider A valuable gold watch and chain were up to be disposed of by raffle The wood sawyer bought a ticket and his number drew the watch. Straightway the old fellow marched all over the town, showing his watch, pulling it out at all times and on all occasions to note the time and to make a show Soon one of the most respectable ladies in the village died and of course there was a very large funeral The ceremonies at the grave were very solemn and interesting As the officiating clergyman closed with the words, 'As from dust we came, so unto dust we shall return,' the wood sawyer pulled out his gold watch and cried out in a loud tone of voice, 'According to my time they are putting her in at just twenty minutes to four

SORE THROAT. Everybody has a cure for this trouble, but simple remedies seem to be most effectual. Salt and water is used by many in a gargle, but a little alum dissolved in the water is better. Other [illegible] few drops of [illegible] or granulated sugar, [illegible] relief.
